

UBC Visiting International Research Student (VIRS) – Extension Approval Form

Students may apply for an extension of VIRS registration at UBC for an additional period of up to 12 months.

A VIRS student must meet all of the following eligibility criteria:

- Not have Canadian citizenship or permanent resident status.
- Maintain registration in a degree program at their home university.
- Intend to come to UBC solely for the purpose of research that aligns with their academic program at their home university.
- Plan to engage in research education and conduct research for one month or longer (maximum 12 months) under the supervision of a UBC faculty member.
- Have no intention to enter into an employment relationship with the university related to the research.
- Obtain the approval for research activities at UBC from their home university.
- Have a UBC faculty member who has agreed to act as research supervisor during the visit.

VIRS program fee: The fee is $415 for any period from one month up to one year. The fee must be renewed after one year, should the VIRS student wish to extend their research period. Host professors or departments may choose to pay this fee; if this is the case, please initial and indicate the speedchart below. Note that the fee may not be paid from a Canadian Tri-agency grant (i.e. SSHRC, NSERC, CIHR) per grant policies.

Medical Insurance (iMED and BC MSP): Students are responsible for extending their local health insurance through their extension period. Please contact Go Global with any questions.

Extension Process: Students must complete this form and seek confirmation from their host supervisor that they agree to continue supervision for the duration of the extension period. If approved, registration at UBC will be continued through the extension period and students will receive a Letter of Extension which may be used to apply for an extension of relevant immigration documents like a visa or study permit.

Admitted VIRS Students have full-time student status while at UBC and are expected to undertake research full-time. They are not permitted to register in or formally audit courses at UBC.
